Allie P. Goss,
January, 1876.

A large, ornate initial 'A' in a dark brown, gothic-style font. The 'A' is decorated with intricate scrollwork and floral patterns. To the right of the 'A', the word 'UTOGRAPHS' is written in a similar gothic font, with the letters appearing to be on a yellow, ribbon-like banner. The banner has a decorative border and is surrounded by elegant, flowing lines and a small, stylized object resembling a quill or a pen nib. The entire title is set against a light cream background.

Alas—

Mayst thou live in joy & ease,
Strangest from thee true pleasure cease,
From thy heart arise no sigh,
And no tear bedim thine eye;
Joys be many, cares be few;
Smooth the path thou shalt pursue;
And Heaven's richest blessings shine
Ere on thee late and true.

Miss Alice Batchelder Leaves Fortune to Companion For Many Years

[Special Dispatch to The Herald]

SALEM, Feb. 3—Years of kindness toward her late companion today brought an $80,000 reward to Miss Susan A. Bodge, elderly Danvers spinster, under the will of Miss Alice S. Batchelder, with whom she lived at 21 Ash street in that town.

Miss Batchelder, who died Aug. 9, executed the will Oct. 31, 1933. An inventory disclosed she owned property valued at $107,641. Neighbors of Miss Bodge said the women had lived together for many years, during which she took care of Miss Batchelder and assisted her in her household duties.

About $26,000 was awarded to friends, distant relatives and to charity. Miss Bodge was bequeathed the residue "in recognition of her great kindness to me."

"May you harrow no more clouds in life, than are necessary for a beautiful sunset."

Sincerely your friend,

Nice Stanley Batchelder.

And centre in the breast
We may be wise, or rich, or great,
But never can be blest:
Nor treasures, nor pleasures
Could make us happy lang:
The heart ay's the part ay
That makes us right-or wrang."

"Fair, to the youthful, inexperienced eye
Her path in life in long perspective seems,
Unclouded bends above the azure sky

And years roll on in one delicious dream.

Wouldst thou, my friend, secure this glorious lot?

By my road sought, who fail, alas, to find—

Be true the thy guide, in every act and thought,

Assisted by a well enlightened mind.

Then though the face of nature be overcast,

Though evening storms and howling winds arise,

Thine inward calm shall mock the angry blast.

And mental sunshine gild the growing shade.

Be true thy guide all life's short days long,

The joys and sorrows past, and Heaven is won."
